The final battle for Italy appeared taking shape amid some indications the renewed air attacks which were stepped up yesterday with mighty blows at Rome, Milan and Turin would go on without let-up until surrender comes.

Aerial sideblows on railroads and highways in the south of Italy yesterday while a force of American bombers were making their second attack on Rome and while fires still were burning in Milan and Turin from an RAF night attack appeared to fit into preliminary pattern of a pre-invasion bombing of Italy.

Dispatches from the Italian frontier said all passenger traffic had been banned on three railway lines leading from Austria into Italy with German troop transports being given priority.

Many German planes were reported sighted flying south into northern Italy.

Hollywood Studio To Make Racing Picture in Marion

Troupe of 90, Including Walter Brennan, Preston Foster and Lon McCallister To Be Here for Filming.

Officials of the 20th Century-Fox studios in Hollywood today announced that the Marion county fairgrounds would be the scene of the filming of the racing phase of a Technicolor production of "The Phantom Filly," a novel by George Agnew Chamberlain which appeared in serialized form in The Saturday Evening Post about two years ago.

A large share of the film will be made during a three-day harness [illegible] meet especially arranged by the Marion Trotting association in cooperation with the studio. The meet will be held Thursday-Saturday, Sept. 16-18. Considerably more of the film will be made at the half-mile fairground track in the four or five days following the meeting, representatives of the studio told Frank M. Foster, president of the Houghton Sulky Co., during a recent inspection visit here.

Starring Roles

The starring roles in the film will be played by Walter Brennan, Preston Foster and Lon McAllister, who starred in "Stage Door Canteen." In notifying Mr. Foster that the Marion site had been chosen from a score or more of other available locations, studio officials advised him that between 80 and 90 persons would be brought here from Hollywood for the filming.

R. E. Goux, unit manager of the 20th-Century Fox studios, Henry Hathaway, who will direct the production, and Paul MacPherson, technical advisor, visited in Marion Aug. 4, 5 and 6 to inspect available facilities. At that time they expressed complete satisfaction with the facilities at the fairground. Important factors, in their final decision, Mr. Foster said, were Marion's central location, the fact that the city has long been a harness racing center and hotel and eating accomodations.

Check Other Sites

While in Ohio the three representatives also checked a number of other outstanding race tracks, including ones at Fremont, Delaware and Greenville.

The meeting being set up by Mr. Foster and the Marion Trotting association will immediately precede the Grand Circuit meeting at Delaware. The dates chosen by Mr. Foster and the studio conflicts only with small fair racing meets in scattered parts of the midwest. Because it will be held just before the Delaware races, the special Marion meeting will undoubtedly attract the nation's finest harness horses.

Afternoon Racing

Mr. Foster estimated today that approximately $6,000 in purses would be distributed during the three days. Probably one $1,000 race will be staged during each of the afternoon programs.

The races will be conducted in the afternoon because the studio would be unable to satisfactorily film night racing.

According to word received by Mr. Foster in a telegram yesterday from Mr. Goux, the film, an all-technicolor production, will be one of the feature productions of the 20th-Century Fox studios this year. It will be made at an estimated cost of $2,000,000.

Filming of the movie will entail two or three distinctly separate production phases. The filming here will be of the racing phase alone. At the famed Walnut Hill farm at Lexington, Ky., the farm phase of the picture will be made. Remaining scenes will probably be filmed in Hollywood.

CHARGE AWAITS TWINS' SLAYER

Cleveland Youth Who Admitted Killing "For the Heck of It" Accused of Murder.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14—Detective Inspector Frank W. Story said today he would place a murder charge against Henry Hagert, reform school parolee, for the double slaying of James and Charles Collins, 13-year-old twins.

Story reported Hagert, who will be 18 next month, confessed killing the twins last Thursday "for the heck of it" and because "I didn't like them," and also admitted attacking Jack Buchanan, nine-year-old son of City Food Inspector E. B. Buchanan, the day before.

As the murder charge was prepared for filing in juvenile court, the social tragedy brought a wave of demands for action against degenerates and a pledge from Gov. John W. Bricker for state welfare department aid toward this end.

"We want to assure the officials of Cleveland the state welfare department will do anything in its power to help them find the answer to the problem," Gov. Bricker said.

The slain twins, James and Charles Collins, shot through the back of the head, were found late yesterday in a wooded section of suburban Bay Village.

Newspapermen Provide Tip

Detectives credited Reporter Todd Simon and Photographer Andy Kraffert of the Cleveland Plain Dealer for the tip that led to Hagert's arrest. They encountered the Lakewood youth Thursday morning prowling around a field in suburban Westlake village where police had found the abducted Buchanan boy in a dazed and bleeding condition.

Simon said the youth's surly attitude and his unusual interest in looking over the spot where the Buchanan child had been found aroused his suspicion and he jotted down the license number of the car Hagert was driving.

Story quoted Hagert as saying he first saw the Collins twins late Thursday afternoon when they had set out to caddy at Lakewood country club.

"They were trying to thumb a ride," the detective quoted Hagert. "Passed them up as I went by the theater on Detroit road, but then turned around and picked them up. I killed the one who said his name was James first and then I shot his brother. I guess the reason I killed them

STORM HITS OHIO WAR PLANTS; KILLS 2

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes and wind storms which ripped northern Ohio last night killed two persons, injured scores of others, halted war production in three plants and caused damage reckoned at close to a million dollars.

The dead were Mrs. Josephine Loe, 64, of Cleveland, buried under the wreckage of the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Krapp, west of Vermilion, and John Selby, 25, of Waynesburg, who died when a twister destroyed the CCC Trucking Co.'s garage and warehouse at Canton.

War production was halted at the Carnegie Steel Corp., the Barium Stainless Steel Corp. and the No. 2 plant of Diebold, Inc., at Canton. Several homes were struck by lightning and many windows shattered. Felled power lines plunged the city into darkness for several hours. A score of persons were admitted to hospitals for treatment of minor injuries.

A dozen houses were demolished at Leavittsburg, four miles west of Warren and more than 20 persons were removed to Warren hospitals for treatment.

Suburban Olmstead township near Cleveland was struck by a small tornado that destroyed three residences and badly damaged a score of others.

Italy Declares Needed Steps Being Taken

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 14 — Premier Pietro Badoglio's government is taking immediate steps to declare Rome an open city under international law as a result of the second heavy American bombing of the Italian capital, Italian broadcasts said today.

A British government spokesman intimated a London announcement on the subject might be forthcoming later.

There was no confirmation in official circles here, however, or in the text of a Stefani News Agency announcement from Rome as to whether the declaration was actually in Allied hands or that the Italian government's proposals would prove acceptable.

Obviously the Allies would have to be satisfied that Rome—still the seat of Badoglio's "continue fighting" government — is actually stripped of all military installations, cleared of the government and closed as a transit point for troops and supplies before they would accept it as an open city.

The Berlin radio as well as the Rome station transmitted the Italian news agency announcement of the decision.

The Italian capital has been bombed twice by formations of American bombers, on July 19 and Aug. 13, with its railroad network the principal target each time.

ALLIED BOMBS BLAST VITAL JAP AIR BASE

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 14—Much of Salamaua, Japan's vital air base on northeastern New Guinea, lay in smoking ruins today, devastated in 45 minutes by 177 tons of bombs.

Debris littered the waterfront of the one-mile long isthmus; the big airdrome, two miles inland, was the scene of widespread damage; Chinatown and the village of Kela, which faces Salamaura across a bay, were covered with dust and smoke.

Whether this raid presages capture of Salamaua remains to be seen. But, it was just such a concentrated aerial blasting which preceded the last decisive ground triumph scored by the allies in the New Guinea sector. That was the capture in mid-July of Mubo.

Today's communique gave this picture of the devastation wrought by Friday's raiders, attacking in five waves:

"The whole area was covered with dust, smoke and debris. Fires rose to a height of 6,000 feet after the explosions of munition dumps. The portion of the town on the isthmus has virtually ceased to exist, and the whole area is in ruins."

More than 1,000 tons of bombs, dropped in 30-odd days of raiding, have burst upon Salamaua since the two-pronged Pacific offensive got under way June 30 with Salamaua the immediate objective on the left and the Munda airfield, New Georgia island, on the right.

Silk Underwear Coming for Women and Babies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—Women's silk underwear and silk baby pants are coming back.

French Troops Ready To Fight with Allies

By The Associated Press

ALGIERS, Aug. 14—Gen. Roger Leyer, chief of staff of the Unified French Army, said today "an important force of French troops" was ready to participate with the allies in the European offensive, whether in Italy or elsewhere.

REDS DISCLOSE USE OF RECORD RAIN OF FIRE

Declare Artillery Barrage in Summer Drive 10 Times Heavier Than Verdun.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE BRYANSK FRONT, Aug. 14—It can now be told that the Red army summer offensive was opened by a tremendous artillery barrage rated by the Soviet command as the greatest in history.

The bombardment of the German lines touched off at 3 a. m. July 12 was estimated at least ten times heavier than the fire at Verdun. About 3,000 gun barrels were massed in each mile of the front for the breakthrough. (Artillery so concentrated would form two or three lines hub-to-hub.)

The offensive now is rolling steadily westward from Orel toward Bryansk while later attacks are being pressed around Kharkov and between Bryansk and Smolensk.

Transported by American-made trucks in large numbers and supported by American and British tanks and planes in lesser numbers, the Russians are carrying out their first great summer push along the lines of two successful winter offensives.

West of Orel, the Red army is enveloping Karachev from the south closing the last escape gap for the enemy fleeing the former Orel salient.

Fight in Swamps

It is raining intermittently out here now. Fighting is going on in swamps, boggy fields and soaked forests.

I rode out to this front in an American three-quarter-ton bucket-seated weapon-carrier truck.

In the headquarters over which Red air force planes droned constantly to and from the front, I heard an analysis of the offensive by Maj. Gen. Peter Petrovich Sabenikov, representative of the supreme command.

Before the summer campaign began, Sabennikov said, "The two lines were waiting to see who would move first. We were ready, watching for what the Germans would do." He continued:

"The Germans began their offensive July 5. By July 10 and 11 they put all their main forces in action. We were ready.

"At 3 a. m. on July 12 we started our counteroffensive by concentric blows on Orel from different directions. By July 15 we began to feel the Germans were uneasy. There was some panic in their ranks."

Germans Tried to Hold

"We could feel that the Germans were putting everything possible into the effort to hold the Orel battlefield, but the general situation and deep reaching attacks of the Red army both in the direction of Karachev and south from Kursk forced the Germans to scatter their reserves which they did not have placed properly."

The general took pains to lay to rest the legend current both here and abroad that the German army is now easy game.

"During the entire period of battle we met only picked troops, tank and infantry," he said. "I have seen a lot of prisoners. Not one is over 30 years old. All are strong, young and good. But they are morally shattered by previous battles and are particularly afraid of our artillery and Katiusha."

Sabennikov smilingly described Katiusha, the Red army's secret weapon, as "very good and beautiful: the Germans dance when she sings."

"We gave them artillery fire in this sector such as they had never seen in any sector," he continued. "Soviet artillery was so dense

Nazis Retreat on New Front

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 14—German troops, already facing the loss of their great base at Kharkov, were retreating on still another front today as the Russian high command announced the opening of a new offensive apparently aimed at Smolensk, 225 miles southwest of Moscow.

The Russian midnight communique indicated the Red army was forcing the Nazis back all along a front that stretched 500 miles south from Smolensk to the Ukrainian city of Kharkov. The Russian army had already penetrated the suburbs of Kharkov.

In the central sector, the Red army was reported to have advanced steadily along the railroad from Orel toward Bryansk and heavy fighting was reported at Karachev, only 28 miles from the city.

The new offensive is near the western-most point in the Russian lines.

The Russians said one column had pushed 13 miles in the last three days to take the town of Pavolino, 72 miles from Smolensk.

The advance was accompanied by what was described as a powerful artillery attack which shattered German defenses and permitted the Russians to break through and capture 100 villages. More than 2,000 Germans were killed in the fighting.

The bulletin indicated that the fall of Kharkov, held by the Russians for a brief period early this year after the German retreat from Stalingrad, was imminent.

The advance on Bryansk, the Russians said, was continuing steadily in the face of stubborn German resistance.

Third War Loan Drive Quota Set; R. E. White To Be Chairman

Marion County Goal in September Campaign To Be $2,829,000 Exclusive of Bank Purchases; Drive Opens Sept. 9.

A Marion county quota of $2,829,000 exclusive of bank purchases has been set for the nation-wide Third War Loan drive to be launched Sept. 9 and R[illegible] E. White [illegible] the National City Bank has been named [illegible] the drive.

This drive [illegible] Schoenhard, [illegible] was [illegible] Sept. [illegible] committee [illegible] public [illegible] work that has [illegible] county's part [illegible] the biggest bond-selling event of the war.

The September quota doesn't seem unusually large in the light of the $2,970,512 sold in the Second War Loan drive in Marion county last April, but there's a catch in the September quota. In September, only the non-bank purchases will be credited toward the quota whereas in April bank purchases counted along with those of individuals and corporations.

Records show Marion county in the April campaign had non-bank purchases totaling $2,155,513, which means that to go over the top in September Marion county will have to buy $673,487 more in war bonds than during the April campaign.

The urgency of the situation and the imperative need to meet the increased quotas are explained by Henry Morgenthau Jr., secretary of the treasury, in a letter sent several weeks ago to the state war finance committees. It said in part, "We will spend a total of about 52 billion dollars between July 1 and the end of the calendar year. Right now, today, it is costing 249 millions a day to equip our men and take care of other necessary war expenditures. This is nearly 100 millions a day more than we were spending last year at this time. Unless we are able to get more taxes before the end of the year, we are going to have to sell more than twice as much in bonds to individuals as we did in the first half of the year."

The Third War Loan, consequently, will aim at raising the largest amount of money from individuals that any drive has raised in the history of the world. The national non-banking quota [illegible] $695,000,000 [illegible] the national total.

A [illegible] has been set [illegible] Marion county and will be announced in the next few days.

Quotas for Area

Quotas for nearby counties in the Third War Loan drive next month as announced at state headquarters in Cleveland follow:

Crawford, $2,921,000; Morrow, $562,000; Hardin, $1,717,000; Wyandot, $1,337,000; Delaware, $1,095,000; Union, $713,000.

T. H. McKenney, district softball commissioner, said today that the Lincoln park diamond is in good condition.

The opening tourney games were scheduled for today with Universal Cooler and Upper Sandusky playing at 4:30 and Fostoria and General Excavator meeting at 6:30.

GAS RATIONS ORDERED CUT

Allowance Slash To Become Effective at 12:01 A. M. Monday.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—Less gas for the midwest and southwest, a promise of more for the east and, in time, abolition of the pleasure-driving ban was decreed by government authorities today.

It provided that:

1. Gas ration coupons in the midwest and southwest are worth three gallons instead of four starting at 12:01 a. m. Monday.

2. The ban on pleasure driving in the 12 northeastern states may be lifted by Sept. 1 if current restrictions are obeyed.

3. More gas for the east is in prospect for possibly late in September.

The Atlantic coast states have been getting along on 1½ gallons per "A" coupon, and 2½ for "B" and "C" tickets.

OPA made its announcement because, said Acting Administrator Chester Bowles, "with the reductions in supplies allotted to us, no (other) course was possible."

OPA's announcement of gasoline ration cuts in the midwest and southwest coincided with a statement from Interior Secretary Ickes that available gasoline in those sections would be off 15 per cent from the June consumption.

Washington was about the last official source in the country to announce the 25 per cent gasoline cut to midwest and southwest motorists. Original plans were to announce the cut from here next Sunday, while filling stations were closed, and thus prevent a rush of motorists to gasoline pumps.

But the news came in dribbles from all over the midwest and southwest yesterday. It became so general that OPA hastened its announcement.

Ickes said reduced civilian consumption of gasoline "is necessary in the middle west and southwest" because of an already-existing shortage of crude oil in that area and an impending shortage overall brought to a head by huge military requirements.

CORN JAM BROKEN, GOVERNMENT SAYS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—The war food administration reported today mid-western AAA committeemen had persuaded farmers in that region to sell sufficient corn during the past six weeks to supply industrial processors making essential corn products until the new corn crop is harvested this fall.

Early in July many corn products plants were forced to close because they were unable to obtain grain. Farmers and others were holding it either for livestock feed or for a possible increase in the ceiling price.

NAZI FORCES CENTER EFFORT ON EVACUATION

Allies Hammer Retreating Foe from Air, Land and Sea; Approach Messina.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 14—Pelted by everything from blockbusters to machine-gun bullets from the air and artillery fire from the sea, the German army has begun a full-scale evacuation in an effort to save as much material and manpower as possible from the wreckage of Sicily for the battle of Italy.

With their center caved in by the allied capture of Randazzo, north of Mt. Etna, the Germans put their evacuation machinery into full swing, it was officially announced today. They are retreating behind a strong rearguard which fell back rapidly in front of victorious British and American infantry attacks.

Sweeping to within 34 miles of Messina in virtually all sectors, the allies captured Piraino on the north coast, Floresta in the central sector, and Riposto, Giarre and Milo on the east coast.

All Mt. Etna is now in allied hands.

An allied commentator, confirming previous field reports of the German withdrawal said there no longer was any question but that the Germans' sole aim was to escape to the Italian mainland with as many troops and as much equipment as possible.

Evacuation Speeded

Allied aerial reconnaissance showed that ships crossing the narrow, bomb-tossed Messina strait, were arriving empty on the Sicilian beaches and departing loaded, he said.

The strait, he added, was under constant fire from British light warships and coastal craft and from the fleets of allied bombers shuttling back and forth through that "flak alley" with their loads of 2,000-pound blockbusters and cannon and machine-gun ammunition.

RAF and Canadian Wellingtons dropped two-tonners on ports on both sides of the strait and even laid strings of them along the beaches where enemy infantry was seen wading to the boats.

The overall picture in the narrowing Messina bridgehead began to resemble the German collapse at Cap Bon in Tunisia last May, but with this chief difference. The German retreat was orderly and a weary German rearguard was offering a fierce covering resistance.

But the British and American infantry was stabbing in, and making rapid inroads, particularly in the central sector where the fall of Randazzo had made the whole area untenable.

It appeared doubtful if the enemy would be able to extricate his heavy equipment and get it across the strait, despite the employment of every delaying device known to modern warfare.

Allied engineers worked feverishly, clearing wide and cleverly placed minefields, pushing roadblocks aside, constructing bypasses around craters and landslides caused by a liberal use of dynamite, and rebuilding bridges.

As they near the coast the allied troops probably will come under the bombardment of batteries of 15-inch shore rifles erected on the Italian mainland to beat off allied warships and lay down a curtain of steel before the evacuation operation.

These giant twins throwing 2,400-pound shells a distance of 20 miles, already had been in action, and naval reconnaissance indicated that there were several groups of them near the Italian toe.

An allied naval communique disclosed however that British light and coastal sea forces twice had swept into Messina strait at night in search of enemy shipping without meeting any opposition but encountering the fire of these shore batteries which did no damage.

Motor torpedo boats even sent a fan of torpedoes after three enemy merchantmen as they entered Messina harbor and heard an explosion, presumably caused by the attack.

Other light naval forces smashed again at the German rearguards opposing the British

Peace

A SERMONETTE

By REV. ERNEST FINKENBINER
Pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church

Isa. 57:20-21—The wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God to the wicked.

MAN does not like to be called wicked however his quest for permanent world peace has been fruitless, therefore he must face the truth of our study verse, For There Is No Peace, Saith My God to the Wicked.

Peace conferences have been convening regularly ever since history has been recorded, yet we of this present hour realize that the world is being ravaged by one of the most vicious struggles ever waged among men. The desirable state of international peace will continue to be an impossible condition so long at the true chairman of any peace board is ignored. God provided the basis for a just and durable peace in the person of His Son and we invite you to consider the record of (Isaiah 9:6-7):

The government shall be upon His shoulders; and His name shall be called wonderful, counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the prince of peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His Kingdom to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.

We of today literally behold the prophetic fulfillment of (Psalm 2:1-3):

Why do the heathen (nations) rage and the people imagine a vain thing. The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against His anointed, saying, let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us.

Pathetic is the most convenient word to adequately describe the activity of frail men (Psalm 39:4), whose foundation is in the dust (Job 4:19); as they persist in ignoring God's true record of eternal truth. Leading churchmen become ridiculous figures as they prepare to assist unsaved statesman to bring about a world peace for it is written there is no peace saith my God to the wicked.

We rejoice for the opportunity of presenting the "good news" of the gospel inasmuch as that is the Divine basis for a permanent peace. Did not our Blessed Lord teach the truth of (John 14:27):

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. Not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled neither let it be afraid.

The record of God instructs every man in (Colossians 1:20):

He made peace through the blood of His cross.

Consequently we may appreciate the authoritative statement found in (Eph. 2:13-14):

In Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ for He is our peace.

His sacrificial blood is the only source of personal peace and we must therefore realize that international peace cannot be enjoyed so long as there is one unclean human heart for "There is no peace saith my God to the wicked." Great reward is offered to the individual who will accept God's Christ, even the Divine inducements of (Eph 1:7):

Redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace.

That act constitutes justification which carries the promise of (Romans 5:1):

Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

The inspired Paul described the priceless gift of God in these words (Phil. 4:7):

The Peace of God which passeth all understanding.

Dear reader friend you are face to face with the chairman of the peace board: none other than the Lord Jesus Christ. Nations may ignore Him but you as an individual may find personal peace through faith in His shed blood. Claim it today—tomorrow may be too late.

Lightning Turns In False Alarm at Kenton

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., Aug. 14—Kenton firemen listened to the alarm box tap out its hurried message yesterday noon, then leaped into the open trucks and sped through a downpour of rain to an expected scene of a fire a mile distant. But when they arrived, the alarm box was intact and there was no blaze. Fire Chief Ralph Jones, as he changed his wet clothes, said lightning had set off the alarm.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has 7,800 women employes, or 13 times as many as in pre-war days.

SUPPOSE THERE WERE NO LIFE INSURANCE!

If there were no Life Insurance, men would be forced to save every spare dollar—for what pleasure is there in spending money when the peril of a penniless tomorrow hangs over the family? Prosperity may smile now, but no matter how large a man's income may be, the family would be denied most of the good things of life lest tomorrow there should be no money for the necessities. The struggle between today's desires and tomorrow's needs never would end.

If there were no Life Insurance, men would be timid and hesitant in their business transactions. Who would be willing to risk on a business venture if there were no Life Insurance to step in and save the day for his family in case he didn't live to safeguard the venture until it became successful? The risk of losing all in an unfortunate investment and coming down to old age penniless would be too great for the ordinary man to assume unless he had special reserve in the form of a Life Insurance contract.

"This Division Knows No Retreat!"

CHAPTER TWELVE

O[illegible] Viazma we turned off [illegible]sk Chaussee on the [illegible] Yartsevo, a village [illegible]nger existed as such, [illegible] a heap of ruins on a [illegible]mportant spot which [illegible] recaptured July 27 and [illegible] as an advanced [illegible] Red army. Through [illegible] we drove up to a division [illegible]quarters, three miles [illegible] German lines, and forty [illegible] east of Smolensk. As [illegible] a clump of woods [illegible] could hear the artillery [illegible] the distance. [illegible]initely a joyful sound, [illegible] of the big guns, not [illegible] sadistic thought that [illegible] killing men, but from [illegible] feeling that those [illegible] killing German who [illegible]erwise kill me in Moscow [illegible] wife and daughter, Con[illegible] Dedham, Massachusetts, [illegible] father and brother [illegible] Massachusetts, my sister in Chicago, Illinois. And it was exhilarating to know that those thumping guns were Russian guns, not only holding the enemy, which was an achievement at that time, but turning them back in bewilderment.

From this point on, for an account of the rest of that day the reader must excuse me if I am a bit vague, for this is where the cocktail-party angle of the story is introduced. I remember walking through a troop-populated wood to a dugout, where I was introduced to Lieutenant-Colonel Kirilov, commander of the division. I remember walking into a great magic tent where Sasha, the fourteen-year-old mascot of the division, did honors at the door, a soldier played an entry march on a piano, and girls were heaping food and drink on long board tables; all that within sound of the big guns on the front.

From there on I remember very little. We sat down, with Colonel Kirilov and Nikolai Suslov, his political commissar (an office which was later to be abolished), at the head of the table, and with the correspondents along the sides, interspersed with junior officers. Erskine Caldwell sat opposite me, beside an enthusiastic captain who was determined to engage in a duel of 'do adna,' meaning 'in one,' or 'bottoms up,' with vodka as the weapon and a visitor as his opponent. This it seemed, was a time-honored tradition, and the guest challenged was honor-bound to meet every pass of his challenger. Caldwell skillfully turned his captain's attention to me, and I became the correspondents' champion for the day. Afterward, I was told, I was carried out of the tent, while the captain, standing at the door, saluted his valiant though defeated opponent—and then passed out in his turn. This is possibly an exaggeration in my case, and probably in the case of the captain, but in any case, when I next became clear about the progress of that historic trip to the front, I was lying in a comfortable cot in a school-house, many miles back of the front.

My colleagues informed me that, after that lunch, I slept quietly in my car, while the others went out to see the command post of an artillery battery, the headquarters of an artillery brigade, and a dugout for troops, two miles from the German lines. If that was true, I am sure they have written it for posterity.

While others assumed the role of champions for the rest of the trip, I can complete my account of it more clearly.

We drove the next day to another divisional headquarters, this one only two miles from the German lines in the Dukhovschina sector, and were met by Colonel Mikhail Dodonov, commander of this Siberian unit. Again, we were seated promptly to lunch, this time not in a tent, but in an open clearing in the woods. This must seem very mild, going to the front and promptly sitting down to lunch. In fact, it was very mild. It was precisely this mildness that was impressive. So secure was the Russian position that in both cases the colonel in command could spread a meal for us, almost within sight of the enemy.

After lunch, we coaxed Colonel Dodonov, a big, quiet man, into telling us something about his unit.

'Well,' he said, 'this is a Siberian division. From the stories of prisoners, we gather that we are regarded as wild men. But actually, we are civilized men, not at all wild.'

The silent sentries, the girls serving at tables, with white robes over their khaki uniforms and black boots, gave supporting evidence to this testimony.

'To fight the Germans, you've got to know their weak points, and when you know them, you can beat them,' said Dodonov. 'They're bad at fighting at night, actually frightened at night, especially in the woods, although strictly between us, they have some success at night, too.'

(That 'strictly between us,' I am sure, no longer applies, now that the war is two years old and Dodonov has become a general.)

'The peculiarity of this division,' he continued, 'is that we decided to fight the Germans at night. As a result of three night battles, the Germans have retreated 14 kilometers, leaving much of their equipment and many prisoners.

'This division,' he said proudly, 'knows no retreat. It has moved only forward.

'Now, the Germans are scared as hell of our patriots and night action. They do a lot of shooting, just to make a noise. They fire thousands of rockets, turning night into day, so they can see around them. We're glad to have them make this light for us.'

We slept that night in a medical dressing station, a heated tent with straw spread on the floor and iron cots ranged along the walls, while the artillery sang its deep, hoarse lullaby. In the morning, we found a pouring rain had reduced the dirt road to a terrible bog of oozing black mud. We set out, nevertheless, for Yelnia, greatest objective yet taken by the Red army and final objective of our trip, 75 miles from our tent. Through water-filled bomb and shell craters, under drenched pine trees, and across soggy fields, we slogged all the day. We slept that night in a pine forest outside Dorogobuzh and drove on the next day to Yelnia.

5 LAST—CH 12—MOSCOW—Sat

On the battlefield, we traced the first major Russian victory of the war, a victory which ejected the Germans, for the first time on any front, from any considerable amount of territory. A brigade commissar, who had taken part in the action, explained it to us.

Here, the Germans' own tactics of encirclement and extermination had been turned against the Nazis for the first time tactics which they were to face again in the battles of Moscow and Stalingrad.

The graveyard of Yelnia itself, which the Germans fired before they left, was lined with the skeletons of burned houses, standing like lonely sentinels along the ravaged streets. Around the city the fields were torn by tank treads, slashed by anti-tank ditches, and strewn with shattered cottages.

The devastation was far greater than anything I had seen after the war in the west. There, after the fall of Paris, I found the battle had passed swiftly and lightly over most places, punching only a few holes in a village here, wrecking a crossroads there. Around Yelnia, all was consumed in a frightful, all-devastating struggle between two giants, fighting savagely to the death.

From Yelnia we turned back through Viazma to Moscow. The first stories were written under the dateline, 'With the Red Army.' And two weeks later, after a political intermission for the three-power supply conference, the greatest battle of the year, the battle of Moscow, began along that same front.

Americans Using Leaflets To Induce Enemy Surrenders

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY NEAR RANDAZZO, Sicily, Aug. 10—(Delayed)—Enemy lines are now being bombarded by allied artillery with informative leaflets as well as shells.

The leaflets are fired into territory held by Germans or Italians after it has first been raked heavily by gunfire so that the shaken axis soldiers realize that the leaflets, telling them they would be better off if they surrendered, are not fiction.

Capt. Martin F. Herz of New York City, said the leaflets could be used by German or Italian soldiers as surrender passes when they come over to the allied lines.

"We list on one side of the leaflet recent war developments, which their leaders probably have kept from them because they are unfavorable to the axis, and point out to them the fallacy of dying in a fight which it is now impossible for them to win," he said.

"On the other side we print a message assuring them that if they surrender they will be given good treatment and fed well. We make no false promises of any kind to them."

"The shells burst in the air and shower the leaflets down like a snowstorm," said Lt. Livingston Hartley of Washington, D. C., who like Herz, was a propaganda expert in civil life.

"Prisoners have said that they read the leaflets and were impressed by them but it is impossible to say how many surrenders they are responsible for."

Prospect Woman, Atlanta Marine Wed in Georgia

The chapel of the Glenn Memorial church on the campus of Emory university in Atlanta, Ga., was the scene of the wedding of Miss Anna Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Johnson of Prospect, and Lt. Merrill R. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Moore of Atlanta, Ga., Wednesday evening, Aug. 4 at 8 o'clock.

Rev. F. A. Stutphin read the double ring ceremony. Nuptial music was played at the organ by Billy Pinkston of Atlanta and Power McLeod of Atlanta sang, "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

Mrs. Moore

The couple took their vows before an altar banked with fern and floor baskets of white gladioli interspersed with candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Miss Elizabeth Moore, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Miss Maryellen Hill and Miss Erma Louise Drake of Prospect were bridesmaids. Wendell Williams of Atlanta served as best man and Pfc. John F. Sessions Jr. and Pvt. Wesley Clark, also of Atlanta, seated the guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Everett Johnson, was costumed in a floor length gown of white marquisette over taffeta. Appliqued fern leaves followed the neckline curve. Her fingertip veil of illusion was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a white prayer book showered with white orchids and stephanotis, and wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Moore wore a floor-length shell pink marquisette gown and carried a crescent bouquet of blue delphinium and pink rosebuds tied with pastel ribbon. The bridesmaids were attired in similar gowns, Miss Hill's an aqua color and Miss Drake's a dusty rose shade. They carried bouquets of gladioli and pink rosebuds, tied with pastel ribbon.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Johnson chose a floor-length gown of black taffeta trimmed with white lace, and wore white orchids on her shoulder. Mrs. Moore selected a lavendar lace model, with which she wore an orchid.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Johnson honored her daughter and Lt. Moore with a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents on Brown Mill road in Atlanta. The bride's table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a tiered wedding cake. Miss Hill and Miss Drake assisted at the reception.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Moore left for Jacksonville, Fla., where Lt. Moore is stationed and where they will reside, the bride was wearing a white linen suit with a black velvet Chesterfield collar with black accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids.

Mrs. Moore, a graduate of Prospect High school and Ohio State university, was employed until recently with the Telling Bell Vernon Co. in Prospect as a dairy technician. Lt. Moore attended Ohio State university until he enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserves a year ago last June. He was affiliated with the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Your Bed Linen

By GLADYS DEGNER
Associated Press Writer

Bed linens may seem far removed from the war effort, but like all other household goods, they must be guarded against unnecessary wear and tear.

Proper care of sheets begins with care of your bedsteads. Rough or splintered wood, broken parts and snapped or uncovered springs can cause many a tear. These should be repaired to prevent the linen from getting caught.

Don't be a yanker. Jerking the sheets off the bed is hard on them. Carefully loosen the tucked-in edges before you remove the sheets.

You can lengthen the life of sheets by reversing them, just like you do the mattress. If the broad hems are at the head today, place them at the foot tomorrow. Also rotate their use by putting fresh sheets at the bottom of the stack each time you finish the laundry.

Sheets and pillowcases were not meant to be laundry bags. Using them as such is about the fastest way there is to wear, tear and wreck them.

Changing the bed linens at least once a week and washing them just as regularly is important. Soap and water combat the effects of perspiration and soil, but be sure you rinse out all the soap. Left in, it deteriorates the threads. In ironing, do not use too hot an iron and alternate between folding sheets in half and in thirds, so that the same place will not always be creased.

Mend torn or worn sheets before washing. When the center of a sheet becomes thin, tear it in half and sew the selvedge edges together to give it a new lease on life.

Strike Halts Output at Buffalo Steel Mill

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 14—Steel production at the Republic Steel Corporation's Buffalo plant remained paralyzed today, a company official said, by a walkout of approximately 2,000 employes.

Frank C. Farrell, district manager, stated production was halted last night as the second work stoppage of the week in the steel conditioning department spread to include the bar mills and dye roll departments.

McNichols had declared earlier the stoppage in the steel conditioning department was "unauthorized." He blamed it on the alleged refusal of a superintendent to permit a sick worker to be replaced by fellow-workers.

Indications Point To Big Post-War Demand for Construction of Homes

WASHINGTON — While privately financed war housing construction is continuing in considerable volume, the necessary wartime elimination of all home building not required for the housing of war workers is resulting in a tremendous deferred demand for new homes, Earl S. Draper, deputy commissioner of the federal housing administration, reports.

This demand is particularly apparent in many communities which have not needed additional housing for war workers and also in developing on a broad scale among all groups who would normally be buying new homes, Mr. Draper said. As a result, wide interest is being shown in the possibilities for prompt resumption of home construction when the war is over and materials are again available for normal building, he said.

Predicting that the larger part of the postwar demand will be in the small home field for individual ownership, Mr. Draper said machinery for stimulating quick revival in that field will be immediately available under the FHA mortgage insurance provisions of Title II of the National Housing Act.

"The effectiveness of that legislation during the prewar period in putting new life into an industry practically killed by the depression demonstrates its ability to revive the private building industry and its financing system in the postwar period, Mr. Draper said.

Ready for Action

"With Title II on the statute books, ready to go into immediate action as soon as the war is over, building material manufacturers will be able to start producing their peacetime products immediately with assurance of a ready market. Builders can then start to build, buyers can start to buy, and financial institutions can agree to lend the necessary mortgage funds, sending their insurance applications to the FHA field office in their territories."

At present, approximately $500,000,000 in mortgage insurance for postwar home construction is available under Title II. Subject to presidential approval, authorization for $1,000,000 additional insurance can be made available if needed.

While the Title II plan will be available to stimulate home building for individual ownership, rental housing and the rehabilitation of blighted areas through a coordination of private and public operations are two other aspects of housing in the United States which have not yet been adequately solved, particularly from the standpoint of private financing, Mr. Draper said.

Large-scale rental projects financed under the FHA peacetime rental housing program have generally been successful but there have not been enough of them, Mr. Draper said.

"One of the difficulties clearly apparent is that of procuring equity capital," he said. To overcome this barrier, it has been proposed by some that strong, well-established financial interests form corporations to build, own and operate large rental properties of the so-called garden apartment type. Another proposal is the possibility of using the yield insurance formula as a subsitute for the insurance of high-percentage mortgages."

The rehabilitation of blighted city areas will be the greatest single problem in the postwar housing field, Mr. Draper declared. Because of the long-term trend of growth toward the suburbs, the central sections of many cities not only have become blighted but also represent a serious waste of land, utilities, police and fire protection expense, and of private investment funds, he said.

Method of Procedure

The first step in planning the rehabilitation of such districts must be the determination of the part to be played by public interests—municipal, state and federal—and of the part which can be played by private interests, Mr. Draper stated.

"This means not only the actual physical function of redeveloping these areas, but the refinancing, rebuilding, and long-term management of the redeveloped sections," he said. "It also is generally conceded that this question together with the future development of areas for individually-owned homes should be an integrated part of a well conceived city plan."

U. S. Guns Destroy Entire Battalion of Foe's Artillery

By The Associated Press

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY BEYOND TROINA, Sicily, Aug. 10 — (Delayed) — How American artillery fire wiped out an entire battery of 12 heavy enemy guns and destroyed 18 vehicles—one of the most remarkable feats of the Sicilian campaign—was described today by a young officer.

"It happened three days ago as we were fighting through these hills," said Lt. Adgate Duer of Stevenson, Md., aid of the artillery general. "One of our forward observers at twilight spotted two enemy guns and then saw flashes of a number of other field pieces nearby.

"He called down to the battalion for a few adjusting rounds and then pulled in three more battalions—a total of fifty-four 155mm howitzers and self-propelled and towed 105mm guns—on the target.

"When they cut loose it looked like they were blasting the hill in half. They poured in a concentration of five rounds each in a three-minute barrage. That turned out the lights for the enemy battery. No more fire came from them.

"Next day our infantry was able to pass this position and found signs indicating that all 12 guns had been in line close together.

"Doughboys found seven guns totally wrecked and 18 enemy vehicles smashed by our fire. About a mile down the road they came across three more guns in such bad shape that the enemy had been forced to abandon them, and still farther along they discovered two more damaged guns which the Italians, after trying to tow away, had blown up.

"So we got 12 out of 12. It's a very unusual thing to catch and knock out an entire battalion of enemy artillery. I don't recall any time in the Tunisian campaign when we got that many guns together at one time."

Building Quiz

Q. I have some oak [illegible] chairs with good quality leather seats. The chairs were stored for a while on top of each other and the seats stuck together. Some of the leather has pulled off leaving [illegible] of red spots on the seats. Is there anything I can get to cover these spots?

A. My own preference would be for top quality shoe dye of the right color. Apply according to directions on the label. An alternative would be a preparation that you could get at a leather goods store.

• • •

Q. I have just moved into a house that has window screens painted three years ago. The paint is still sticky. How can I overcome this?

A. If the paint is still sticky after three years I doubt if anything will make it dry. You might try wiping it with turpentine. If this fails, your best move is to take off the paint and refinish with a good quality paint or varnish.

• • •

Q. Which of the following methods is better for storing silverware: (a) to keep it in a wooden box or (b) in a tin box painted inside and out? What should the silver be wrapped in? It is not used more than three or four times a year.

A. Either type of box will do if it can be kept tightly closed. The silver can be wrapped with a treated fabric especially made for the purpose or else in a treated paper. The fabric can be purchased at most department stores, and the paper at most of the dime stores.

• • •

Q. Is there a water paint on the market that can be used on wallpaper but which will not make the removal of the paper difficult at some future time?

A. Wallpaper coated with any paint that is durable and washable can not be removed easily. The surface will have to be sandpapered to break through the paint film. You then will be able to wet down the paper for removal.

1943 LAMB CROP DOWN 5 PER CENT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 — The 1943 lamb crop was about 5 per cent less than the 1942 crop and the smallest since 1939, the department of agriculture reported today. Lamb provides only a small portion of the nation's total meat supply, usually around 5 per cent.

The department estimated the crop this year at 31,101,000 head, or about 1,500,000 head under last year. Reduction in the crop in the western sheep states, according to the department, was mostly a result of conditions other than weather and feed, which were not greatly different from the previous year.

"Reports from sheepmen," the department said, "indicate that a shortage of labor at lambing time, the inexperience of much of the labor available and a shortage of ammunition for use against coyotes were largely responsible.

"As in 1942, new range feed was late in starting and lambs made less than usual development up to June 1, but since then they have made a very good recovery in nearly all areas."

The native lamb crop, estimated at 10,964,000 head, was about 600,000 head or 5 per cent smaller than the record 1942 crop and the smallest in the last three years. In the 13 western sheep states the estimated lamb crop of 20,137,000 head was about 900,000 head or 4 per cent below last year's crop.

Hogs were strong and active this week, hitting a new top since last April at $15 in the early trade Friday. Reduced receipts and broad shipping demand were responsible for the upturn. Good and choice fed steers and yearlings were steady, but all other types closed the week 25 cents lower. Increased supplies of lambs sent prices down as much as 75 cents.

Attics Can Be Made Into Liveable Spare Rooms Without Much Expense

By ELEANOR ROSS

In many homes, [illegible] house-[illegible] their way over to the salvage pile [illegible] has had a salutary and [illegible] effect on the house itself. Attics full of old lamps, piles of magazines, books and bric-a-brac take on a new appearance and can be transformed into comfortable spare rooms.

Basements that were cluttered up can now become play rooms for the children or game rooms for everybody in the family with resultant saving of wear and tear on the living room.

Before decorating, the space should be completely cleaned and given an intensive and thorough cleaning. Walls and woodwork should be swabbed, floors scrubbed, windows washed and polished. The inviting look of clean rooms is in itself an incentive to make them livable and helps envision all sorts of decorating possibilities.

Renovating Old Furniture

Old but usable furniture can be renovated and good decorating ideas worked out that take a minimum of materials and cash outlay. If wooden pieces are basically sound and the lines good, it pays to make slight repairs, remove useless decorations, scrape off the old finish and wash and prepare the surface in preparation for a new coating of wax or paint. Besides the surface finish, the essentials for making old wooden furniture look like new are sand-paper, soap and water and plenty of elbow grease.

Upholstered furniture can also be repaired and shampooed, or recovered with fabrics salvaged from worn-out wool draperies or dresses. The fabrics can be washed and redyed as can dusty or worn rugs or carpets. Patching or darning and washing will often make them additions to any room.

Ways To Decorate

With crisp curtains at the windows, flowers or leaves in simple bowls, some amusing or colorful prints or pictures or photographs on the wall, and other simple accessories, the renovated rooms will take on a home-like, extremely pleasing atmosphere. Such improvements provide extra spaciousness and comfort. They also give the housewife the satisfaction of having cooperated with the government both in its campaign for scrap and its conservation drive.

OPA To Check On Used Goods Prices

The Office of Price Administration has issued regulations covering used goods offered for sale and will check second-hand stores and commercial auction sales which have been doing a thriving business, and are reported to be skyrocketing prices, OPA officials at Columbus have announced.

Used refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners and typewriters have previously been covered by a price regulation but now reconditioned and rebuilt furniture, bedding, lamps, baby carriages and miscellaneous houseware articles are included in a new maximum price regulation.

Surveys of second-hand stores and auction sales indicated dealers were charging abnormal prices for used household furniture. The regulation is designed to check this trend and bring this type of merchandising into line.

Welcome, Mr. Churchill

AMERICA gives a rousing welcome to Winston Churchill. It likes him in the hearty American way and is glad to have him in neighboring Canada and hopes that he will come over and have a visit with us on our side of the world's longest unfortified frontier.

Mr. Churchill won the American fancy with his "blood and sweat and toil" speech in England's darkest hour. It likes him for his direct way of doing things. It likes his sudden and dramatic appearances for man to man conferences with our own President and some of the other key figures in this war.

He typifies a resolute, hard-fisted England which fought with its back to the Dover cliffs and held them against the invasion which threatened to envelop the world.

America has a special welcome for the Prime Minister's wife and daughter who accompanied him. It is heartening assurance of United Nations' control of the air and the seas that they can once again make the trip across the Atlantic.

May their visit be pleasant, may Mr. Churchill's talks speed the way to Victory and may the Axis have a new and violent case of jitters as the leaders of the free people meet again for one of their informal sessions which always mean bad news to the dictators.

Ohio Boys at Munda

THE war comes home to Ohio with the announcement that units of the 37th Division took part in the captura of Munda and are now engaged in eradicating the Japanese from the jungles about the air field.

The 37th is made up of Ohio soldiers, members of the Ohio national guard with additions since Pearl Harbor to bring it up to the war strength. It is commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, who took leave of absence from his post as state highway director to lead the Ohio division into action.

It makes this war very real to Ohio just as in the other World war the proud record of the 37th in the great Meuse-Argonne offensive fixed that battlefield forever in the memory of Ohioans.

Ohio soldiers have been in action on all the fronts but this was largely their own show. They went into action as an Ohio unit and most of us know many of the men who marched away with the national guard company when war was declared.

It makes the war very close and very real. It enables us to put our finger on that little dot on the map down in the South Pacific and say: "I know the men who are fighting there." It ought to make us a lot more eager to speed the job back here at home for it gives us a vital and personal part in this war that sometimes seems so far away from our own homes.

The Man Who Isn't There

IT WOULD be sensational news and most welcome to the United Nations people to be able to announce that Premier Stalin had joined Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt in their conference but the fact that he isn't there does not signify any lack of unity.

Problems on the eastern front and the western and southern European fronts are vital to each other in the final analysis but in their immediate development they have little connection. Russia has shown that she doesn't want or need other nations' troops in Russia and she can't send her own to help elsewhere.

Yet each is indispensable to the other. Russia desperately needs the millions of tons of American and British tanks and planes and other weapons which have given her at least equality with the Germans. The United Nations need just as desperately the Russian armies which have kept a couple of hundred Nazi divisions so busy on the eastern sector.

Mr Stalin, we may be sure, is informed of the Roosevelt-Churchill talks and they, no doubt, know much of the Russian plans and prospects. Each is doing a good job at the immediate assignment. There is small ground for satisfaction to the Nazis in Mr. Stalin's absence. The news from the Russian battlefields makes it apparent that the German generals probably would be greatly relieved if he were to go to Quebec for a confab instead of staying at home to direct his armies which are pushing the "supermen" toward their own boundaries at so fast a rate.

Today and Tomorrow

Misjudging Own Power Seen as Root of Trouble for Makers of U. S. Foreign Policy.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

N[illegible] was not [illegible] until a few [illegible].

It became [illegible] when a deep [illegible] change in our foreign [illegible] occurred. When the [illegible] they then made [illegible] rather than of [illegible] their own power.

The honeymoon period of President Roosevelt's foreign policy lasted from Pearl Harbor in December 1941 until the autumn of 1942. For in the autumn happened in the autumn of 1942 Stalingrad, El Alamein, the North African landing and the crisis of the Solomons and Guadalcanal operation. They were the turning point of the war. They were also the turning point in our own foreign relations.

U. S. Role Changes

Until November, 1942, our role was principally to supply munitions and to send reinforcements to our hard-pressed allies. They did the principal fighting. But they depended upon our capacity and willingness to reinforce them.

It was then that grandiose schemes of world-wide beneficence were talked about. It was then that we began to debate whether we would lend our support to the maintenance of peace. It was then that the little Machiavellis took to meddling about with the formation under their aegis of postwar governments in Europe. They all moved from the same general idea—that as the dispensers of lend-lease the world was waiting to hear our pleasure.

But in fact, though lend-lease continues to be an essential instrument of war, it has ceased to be the controlling factor in our foreign relations. After Stallingrad and the offensive which followed, the Russians were invincible. After El Alamein British power was restored. After the North African landing we were no longer lending and leasing we were fighting. After Guadalcanal we knew that in order to defeat Japan without terrible losses and in a tolerably [illegible] for Asia [illegible] as much as they needed ours.

In other words the lend-lease phase of United States foreign policy had been temporary and was ending. Insofar as the President and the state department carried over into the next phase the basic ideas formed in the lend-lease period, they were bound to run into trouble. For they were then misjudging the actual balance of power.

Power Misjudged

They did misjudge it and they ran into trouble. They made a gross miscalculation of our own permanent influence in eastern Europe when they intervened last spring to prevent a full settlement in the Anglo-Soviet treaty. Their lend-lease power, to use a short name for it, was still great enough to prevent what they believed, perhaps rightly, would have been a violation of the Atlantic Charter. But their power was not great enough to bring about a better settlement.

They made a grave moral miscalculation in regard to France because they imagined falsely that since France needed us for its liberation, France would accept our guidance and tutelage.

They made the same miscalculation when they proposed a relief organization in which none of the occupied countries was represented on the governing board. The smaller nations promptly recognized the French national committee without waiting to consult the state department. They have rallied to de Gaulle as a gesture in behalf of their own sovereign disinclination to be dealt with after the war as lend-lease clients.

Our foreign policy is not, it is sad to say, in a sound and promising condition. It cannot be restored by inducing selected correspondents to put out stories about how the critics do not understand the war. The critics all could be silenced. The fact would remain that our foreign policy is running into trouble because it is animated by a misjudgment of Mr Roosevelt's power in the world.

A Changed Picture

He is carrying over unaltered into a new period the ideas which he formed when he was the sole dispenser of the military reserves which all the world had to woo. This is bound to lead him into deeper trouble. For the lend-lease relationship has given way to a necessary partnership where there must be a realization that our power, though larger, is limited.

In that partnership, therefore, we must be prepared to give and take, not merely to proclaim in our views and then insist upon them, complaining that we have the noblest intentions but are misunderstood.

The Army's Medical Magic

Life-Saving Achievement One of Most Notable War Records.

By JACK STINNETT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—In the United States Army medical department's files here is being written one of the staggering stories of this war—the almost unbelievable fact that 97.5 per cent of our battle-wounded live to be discharged as "recovered" or to fight again.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the Army, says this is due to the improved techniques in medicine and surgery, to sulfa drugs and such, to the competence and resourcefulness of the World War II doctor, but that is only part of the story.

"Our record in saving lives of wounded men is in great part due to the excellence of our chain of evacuation from front to rear," he says. "The medical corpsman is a fundamental link in that chain."

He might have said the fundamental link. It may be sensational news that more than 18,000 wounded were flown by plane from the battlefields of Tunisia to base hospitals—that thousands more are being flown out of Sicily today but very few of them would have lived to be evacuated, if it hadn't been for the men who are scattered and [illegible] who go with each company wherever the battle is thickest.

When an assault company moves up to attack, two unarmed medical department soldiers go along to live, eat, sleep, march and sometimes die with them.

The action has started. A man is struck. Within a few minutes, the company aid man has run or crawled to his side. First aid, so vital to preserving life, is swiftly administered. The wounded man is made as comfortable as possible. Often his gun stuck bayonet-first into the ground to mark him for the litter bearers.

Almost as soon as the company aid man dashes off to help other wounded, the stretcher bearers move in. They take the wounded swiftly to the battalion aid station a few hundred yards away in the rear. At the aid station, the men get their first real doctoring—sometimes blood plasma is given—and, if it is [illegible].

In some instances, minor wounds are treated so quickly that men may be back with their companies a few hours after they are wounded.

From there, wounded are carried to collecting stations by ambulances or jeeps, and from there to mobile evacuation hospitals—these tent cities where so many miracles of medicine and surgery are performed.

Frequently, says the medical department, the men are in these hospitals within an hour or two after they are wounded.

The heroes of the U. S. Army medical corps rarely get medals.

"If we gave medals for every act of personal heroism under fire," says Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the Army, "we'd soon run out of medals."

The reason is simple. Decorations are generally awarded for "gallantry in action above and beyond the call of duty." When an infantryman, in the words of the citation, "with complete disregard of his own personal safety and under heavy enemy fire," leaps from a foxhole to silence an enemy strong point, he probably will win a medal.

When a medical corpsman—the enlisted men of the medical department—with the same disregard for safety and under the same fire, advances to minister first aid to the wounded, he is just doing the job cut out for him.

Although the medical corpsman is technically an unarmed "non combatant," and under international law is not supposed to be fired upon if he is wearing the red and white brassard of the Geneva Red Cross, in practice medical department casualties are among the highest proportionately. Shells and bombs are no respecters of international law.

Men in the medical corps, however, have been decorated and General Kirk picked a little handful at random just to give you an idea of the stuff that heroes are made of.

There are, for example, Jimmy Anderson, 19-year-old New Castle, Pa., truck driver; and Dick Jacobsen, 24, a Humboldt, Iowa, mechanic. On a bloody day in April in Tunisia, they drove their ambulance for hour after hour through such heavy gunfire that the infantrymen began to wonder if the old wagon had substance at all. Finally, Anderson was wounded and had to make the last trip in his own ambulance, with his buddy alone at the wheel. Both men today wear the silver star and Anderson the purple heart.

Bob Lakin, 22, Newton, Iowa, and Bob Franer, 25-year-old former Cincinnati city clerk, both privates first class, were liaison men between a battalion aid station and a collecting company evacuating wounded to the rear. When the aid station was virtually cut off by enemy fire, Lakin and Franer kept making the trips despite warnings from the combat troops in the area. Both today wear Silver Stars.

That's the sort of men the medical corps is composed of, says General Kirk. Sometimes they are conscientious objectors, sometimes men with physical defects that keep them out of the "combat services" but always they are men who are willing to take it.

Their code, according to the general, is: "Casualties aren't statistics. They are men. Our job is to help them."

Dispatch from The Radio Front

By Ben F. Meyer for The Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile. — Battlefield jolts to the Axis already have brought a change in tactics by the Berlin radio in programs beamed to Latin America.

Once, the Nazis broadcast proud boasts of the sweeps of their armies, of the sinking of Allied shipping by their submarines and of the "amazing damage" to England by their bombers.

There is not much war news in Berlin broadcasts for Central and South America these days.

Instead, there are dissertations on Nazi coal production and comments that England is now finding it extremely difficult to mine enough coal for domestic requirements."

Frequently, there come discussions about how the people of Germany are "better fed than ever before" and of "extraordinary scientific achievements in the field of dietetics."

There are outraged comments on "terror raids" by British and American planes, and of damage to "churches, hospitals, orphanage asylums and homes for the aged."

Chileans get a chuckle out of the Berlin radio announcement that Germany is the "defender of culture."

When the war news is particularly bad for the Nazis, or for their Axis partners, the radio brings scant reports, if any. Such things as the Allied invasion of Sicily are not mentioned until after listeners have had detailed reports from their newspapers and United States and British broadcasting stations. Then such news is often given in an offhand manner, well down the list of other less important events.

The Berlin radio is quick to grasp any news from the United States which can be turned to propaganda purposes. A senator's criticism of an administration bill is immediately hailed as a "crisis in the Roosevelt administration." There are frequent assaults on "the Jew financiers of Wall Street."

Berlin radio is devoting unusual attention to what it terms "cultural" matters. Occasionally it has a pat on the back for Argentina (only American nation still maintaining relations with the Axis) for its music, "freedom of thought" or "independence of action."

Berlin announcers are identified with Spanish names, and their Spanish is good. Berlin usually beams several programs to Latin America simultaneously over various wave lengths.

United States networks also beam programs to Latin America, as does London. They are likewise delivered in excellent Spanish, and their quality is above those of the Berlin Radio generally. The Berlin radio frequently presents recorded music and speeches and often repeats a speech several times during the evening. The programs have frequent lapses of time when nothing happens, whereas the British and United States programs come in smoothly, without interruption, and present less canned fare.

The Berlin programs are obviously and brazenly propaganda. The British and American programs feature music, plays, news broadcasts, current events, and general entertainment. There are few speeches, whereas on the Berlin programs, someone is talking nearly all the time — about "cultural" affairs.

I MIGHT have known that Calif would be content to play second fid any [illegible] as I their governor, Gov. Warren, as a pos the Republican nomination for pre other day a movement was afoot starring role for him.

Many of the California Republicans definitely had a boom, as the for Warren for president. And any analyst must tell you that if he backing of his state in the Republican tion, he is bound to be a formidable date. In fact, with a boom running for home this early in the game, he already up as well as any of the contenders and than most. Some of them have not the working boom stage.

No individual so far mentioned as a candidate for the Republican nomination developed any considerable enthusiasm the party following in California or western tier of states in the past few It took only a few days for the idea of ren for president to arouse some pause in the same region. Maybe sectional loyalty, especially in Californ sectional loyalty is practically a tribute.

However, I think it is due to the fa Warren is a new and interesting per of greater magnetism than any of the who have been discussed among the ers. He looks good. He is quite a background and his theories seem to of the western Republicans as quite think that right now he is as good a Bricker, Saltonstall or Stassen and Dewey and Willkie.

It seems to me that influence on political history, Californ some right to put forward a man of its very Governor Warren is strictly a 100 per cent fornian.

I find no great interest among Repub in General MacArthur as a presidential sibility just now. Germans Undergo Reversal of Form in Sicily Battle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

We have in Sicily the seemingly paradoxical spectacle of the Germans battling to a bloody finish against the Anglo-American advance, whereas in the vastly important struggle for Tunisia—Hitler's last toe-hold in North Africa — the Nazis surrendered wholesale when cornered.

This striking difference in behavior is attracting the attention of observers, and indeed it's highly important that we know what is behind it. It is suggested by some writers that this reversal of form in the German ranks is due to recognition that the reich is now in dire peril and must be defended to the death, whereas the Nazis troops in Tunisia didn't regard that zone as vital to the fatherland.

Montgomery Gave Clue

Having seen the Boche in operation in two wars I don't believe that's the answer to our phenomenon in Sicily. Rather I think that the famous General Montgomery gave us the key when he remarked to me in North Africa last December:

"The German is a good soldier and will fight, though I believe it is true that once you get him down he cracks up."

As I see it the Germans quit in Tunisia, not because that country wasn't vital to their master but because they realized that continuation of the struggle was equivalent to suicide. They had no hope of beating the allies and they had no hope of escaping from the trap into which they had been pushed.

The situation in Sicily, however, is quite different despite the fact that the Boche know they haven't a whisper of a hope of holding the island. While they fully recognize that they must "abandon ship," they undoubtedly believe (1) that they have a fair chance of pulling off a dunkerque and escaping to the mainland (in fact some of them already have made the bloody passage of Messina strait), and (2) that once they are on the mainland they ultimately will be able to join the German troops which are holding the line of the Po river in northern Italy in force.

See Chance In Sicily

In short, the German soldier doesn't look on the Italian adventure as suicidal, despite the fierceness of the struggle. That doesn't necessarily mean he thinks the fatherland is headed for victory. He may or may not believe that. However, he probably thinks—and not without reason—that he has a chance of fighting his way back into Germany and coming through the war alive.

The same psychological reaction undoubtedly inspires the Nazis who are fighting so fiercely against the onrushing Reds in Russia. The Hitlerites know that they have a chance of getting back home.

So far as concerns the Italian situation, even if the Badoglio government should surrender the allies are able to overrun the lower three-quarters of the peninsula rather easily, there still must be a terrific fight along the defenses of the Po, if the allies choose to force the issue. And behind the German army of the Po there is the great Brenner pass for retreat into the reich.

This characteristic of the German of folding up "once you get him down" is something to keep well in mind in these fast moving days.

Four Pocketbooks Reported Lost in "Bad Luck" Wave

If Marion county residents don't wish to encounter the bad fortune which four Marion county men did in the last two days, they had better keep close tab on their billfolds.

According to police station records, two city and two rural residents reported loss of their billfolds Thursday and yesterday. Total value of the money contained in the billfolds amounted to about $83, according to the estimates of the owners. In addition, miscellaneous items, personally important to the owners, were reported to have been in the lost wallets.

The first report of a missing billfold was received at police station Thursday afternoon from a city man. About $10 was in it, he said. A man from near Marion reported a few hours later that his billfold containing $30 had been lost.

The second city resident to report a lost wallet said money and contents totaled over $35. The final missing billfold was reported by a near Marion man last night who said he was about $8 to the bad as a result of his loss.

Lord Halifax Calls Munitions Output in U. S. Enormous

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 14—Speaking American [illegible] and occasionally amending an American "I guess" to a British "I would suggest," Lord Halifax, the British ambassador to the United States, gave an optimistic report of the American war effort in an interview today.

"There have been setbacks in certain fields of production * * *," he said, "largely due to the difficulty in so large a country of making satisfactory adjustments in manpower demands * * *

"But when it is all said and done, the output of all vital munitions is enormous."

In regard to Russia, the ambassador said American opinion was "fully alive to the essential importance of a full understanding" with Russia for the maintenance of any security system devised.

As to Communism, Lord Halifax said "American opinion about the general system of Communism has not moved" but that does not affect the "desire of many thoughtful people to reach a closer understanding with Russia" on all international questions.

HOG PRICES CLOSE LOWER AT CHICAGO

By The Associated Press

New Type Bombs

The Rome radio said the British over Milan used a new type of incendiary bomb containing about 15 gallons of an inflammable liquid and "to these the worst destruction by fire must be ascribed."

In the Rome raid, the American precision bombers showered explosives on the San Lorenzo and Littorio railway yards—the same targets partly wrecked in the first Rome attack July 19.

The Americans returned to their African bases without loss of a plane.

"I did not see one bomb outside the target area," said Flying Officer Robert Butler, of Staples, Minn.

The Rome radio said places hit included the Palazzo Madama, ancient seat of the Italian parliament, and the Palazzo Carignano.

(A dispatch last night from Associated Press Correspondent Frank Brutto at the Swiss-Italian frontier said thousands of Italians clustered around the Pope and shouted for peace, as he viewed the ruins.

MILWAUKEE TIGHTENS GRIP ON LEAGUE LEAD

Brewers Take Double Header From Louisville.

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Brewers enjoyed a tighter hold today on first place in the American association race after winning a double-header from Louisville while second place Columbus dropped a game to the Minneapolis Millers.

The Brewers cut loose with a five-run barrage in the eighth and final inning of last night's first contest after tying the score, 3 to 3, in the last half of the sixth on Ted Norbert's home run.

The Colonels lost the nightcap, 5 to 4.

When the Columbus Red Birds lost last night's game—the first of a four-game series—to the Millers 8 to 3, they enabled the Minneapolis club to break a five-game losing streak. Emerging from their batting slump, the Millers pounded Ted Wilks, Ken Burkhart and Bill Beckman for 18 hits, Herman Clifton leading the assault with four singles.

St. Paul halted Toledo's five-game winning streak with a 5 to 2 triumph.

The Kansas City Blues took a 2 to 1 decision from Indianapolis after 11 innings.

HUBER LOSES FIELDER BEFORE BIG GAME

If Lincoln park's diamond is sufficiently dry and if the skies are clear Monday night, Huber and Universal Cooler will replay their championship play-off game. Huber, however, undoubtedly will suffer the more of the two teams as a result of the four-day postponement.

A heavy blow was landed on the Huber lineup yesterday when William "Pete" Howison, star leftfielder, was ordered by the U. S. Navy to Princeton, N. J., where he will receive a course in navigation. Throughout this season, Howison has been the accelerator of the Huber powerhouse, both on offense and defense.

Constantly, his uncanny fielding in the left outer garden spot has robbed enemy hitters of extra base hits and thus saved his team from possible defeat. At bat, Pete has always swung in the lead-off spot where his speed and alertness could be used to best advantage.

Howison's loss, together with the departure of Ralph Miley, erstwhile Thresher shortstop about a week ago, leaves two big dents in the Huber armor. Whether the Threshers can pick up two players who can come anywhere near Howison and Miley in ability is currently the big question on every fan's lips. The outcome of the championship game Monday night may well rest with the selection of the subs for the two departed mainstays.

Howison starred in football and basketball at Harding High school over a dozen years ago. He continued his stellar performances on the gridiron and court at Ohio Northern university.

Six Teams Enter County Tourney at Green Camp Field

Six Marion county baseball teams will open play in the county's first organized tournament of the season Sunday, Aug. 22 at the Green Camp high school ball diamond.

The six teams, who already have paid their $5 entry fee, are Cardington, Claridon, Agosta, Richwood, Green Camp, and the Marion Steam Shovel.

The tourney will be under the sponsorship of a group of Green Camp residents interested in baseball.

It will be a double elimination tournament. Each team will have to be downed twice before it can be counted out of tourney competition.

All games will be played over the seven-inning route. On the first day of play, a week from tomorrow, all six teams will battle in three contests. Play will continue on succeeding Sundays until the champion has been determined. Starting time for the initial game next Sunday will be 1 p. m.

Clifford Reichardt of Green Camp, a prominent arbiter in this area for several years, will serve as umpire-in-chief of the tournament.

It has been estimated by tourney sponsors that on an average, the teams have each played eight games this year.

Some classy players are expected to make appearances in the tournament. Carl Oehler, pitcher, and Charles Carr, third baseman, both of the Green Camp team, were among numerous young Ohio ball players to try out at the Brooklyn Dodgers' baseball school in Lima recently. Fritz Walters and Ted Anderson, two of Marion's top players for the past several years, are members of the Steam Shovel outfit.

First round drawings for the tournament will be made next week.

INDIANS ARE SORRY TO SEE A'S LEAVE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14 — The second place Cleveland Indians bid a farewell to the Philadelphia Athletics—victims of four straight beatings—after today's windup of the current series.

The Redskins moved into their present league standing by capturing yesterday's contest 6 to 4 for their eighth victory in nine starts and their sixth in a row.

Mel Harder kept the Mackmen in hand with eight hits to chalk up his fifth win of the season against three losses, but needed help in the ninth after two were out. Allie Reynolds relieved the veteran right-hander and retired the final batter.

The Indians scored three times in the fourth inning and added another trio of runs in the seventh against Don Black, who allowed 10 blows.

Roy Cullenbine walked to open the fourth. Mickey Rocco's single and a pass to Manager Lou Boudreau loaded the bases. Black's wild pitch scored Cullenbine and Ray Mack's one bagger tallied Rocco and Boudreau.

Mack singled again in the seventh and moved to second on Harder's sacrifice. Jimmy Grant batted for third baseman Russ Peters and walked, Oris Hockett's one-baser brought in Mack and Grant came home when the ball got away from Johnny Welaj. Cullenbine then singled to score Hockett.

In today's finale, Jack Salveson goes to the mound for the Indians against Luman Harris for the A's.

Coach Dorris Calls 39 Harding Gridders for Practice Sept. 1

Thirty - nine Harding High school football players, including four lettermen from last year's Prexy team, received letters today from Head Coach Vic Dorris inviting them to attend opening fall grid drills Sept. 1, when they are expected to be ready for a "lot of football."

Formally inviting Marion high school grid candidates to fall practices is one of the many innovations under the Dorris regime which was installed at Harding during the 1942 season. In past years Harding coaches merely issued a call for all prospective footballers and then singled out the ones who showed the most promise both in ability and spirit.

The invitations were accompanied by two pages of written football pep talk and a review of the training rules to be observed under Dorris and Petrich.

Some Inexperienced

Dorris admits that the lucky 39 include some boys who have had little grid experience and some others who probably would not even have made the team had it not been for the war depriving high schools throughout the country of their top-flight gridders.

The four lettermen returning from last year, around whom the 1943 Prexy grid machine will be constructed are Charles Fazio, tackle and team captain this season, Stu Young, backfielder, Elmer Beach, center, and Vern Orth, 200-pound tackle.

The dismal shape of 1943 Harding High football is accented primarily by the scarcity of lettermen. Last year, Dorris and Joe Petrich, line coach, were possessed with lucrative material including nearly a score of lettermen from the preceding year.

Dorris also was forced to cross off names of Larry Daly, Frank Louck and Charley Lust earlier in the summer. Daly and Louck, who would have been sure-fire bets for first team berths this fall, are now undergoing intensive training in the U. S. Army. Lust is also Army-bound, his induction being scheduled for Aug. 26. Charley was counted upon to play a lot of guard this season. Daly would have carried the brunt of the backfield burden while Louck was expected to be on a full-time shift at a guard post.

End Moves Away

Loren Case, tentative first-line end for the coming season, added further to the Prexy mentors' woes when he announced that he would transfer from Harding to the Alma, Mich., high school during the 1933-44 school year. Frank Fogg, big substitute end last season, also moved to leave another hole in the depleted President lineup.

Dorris said that autumn practice would get under way promptly on Sept. 1. At that time he said he will give each of the team candidates, who were issued letters today, thorough tests on various subjects, some not relating directly to football. The 39 boys will be tested on football rules, social behavior, health and training rules. Dorris said Boys who place high in the tests will accordingly boost their chances for a first string position.

In addition to the [illegible] being [illegible] compared [illegible], Dorris [illegible] the [illegible] Prexy team [illegible] smaller than usual. He said that a squad of only about 25 or 26 will make the out-of-town trips.

List of Candidates

The following boys received invitations to participate in opening practices: Sam Bayer, Elmer Beach, Jack Beam, Jim Bo[illegible], Jim Burgess, Jim Caset[illegible], Jack Colgrove, [illegible] Conner, Loren Daniels, Paul Daum, Dick D[illegible], Norman Dillinger, Robert England, Charles Fazio, Fred F[illegible], Lloyd Garner, John Ga[illegible], Carl Harbolt, Rex Kilbourn, Jack Koeppen, Dave Lee, Robert Lee, Dick Lemp[illegible], Fred Le[illegible], Ralph Loreno, John Melick, Russ Williams, Bruce Nystrom, Vern Orth, James Pickeral, George Reese, Don Schaadt, Charles Strobel, Dick Taylor, Ralph Weber, Tom Welch, Bill Wielemann, Stewart Young and Marshall Zuck.

Dorris believes there will be no organized Jayvee football this season although the Harding varsity third stringers may play a few contests with small high schools in the district.

Harding will play the following schedule this season one of the toughest in Harding history: Sept. 17—Mansfield, here; Sept. 24—Columbus West, here; Oct. 1—Galion, away; Oct. 8—Mt. Vernon, here; Oct. 15—Lima South, here; Oct. 22—Findlay, away; Oct. 29—Ashland, away; Nov. 5—Bucyrus, here; and Nov. 12—Shelby, away.

CLARKE SLIPS, BUT KEEPS BATTING LEAD

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 — Although dropping several percentage points in the American association batting race this week, Grey Clarke of Milwaukee found his closest pursuers going likewise and so maintained his wide lead with a .349 mark—25 points ahead of Chet Wieczorek of Columbus.

Clarke slid from .352 to his current ranking, but all the first five in the "top ten" hitting list also slipped several notches.

The most appreciable gains were made by Joe Moore of Indianapolis, who jumped from sixth to fourth by hiking his percentage from .304 to .317, and by his teammate Gil English, who went from 10th into a seventh-place tie by improving .284 to .299.

Clarke still led in hits with 131, in runs-batted-in with 72, and was tied in number of triples, nine, with Steve Barath of Louisville and Ed Morgan of Indianapolis.

The first three teams in batting were Milwaukee, .280; Toledo, .269 and Indianapolis, .265. St. Paul's mark topped the team fielding bracket, followed by Columbus and Kansas City each with .970.

Jim Trexler of Indianapolis again took the pitching lead with 14 victories against 5 defeats, while Milwaukee's Joe Berry recorded 14 wins but six losses. Ted Wilks of Columbus and his teammate, Preacher Roe, remained locked for strikeout honors, each with 88 victims.

REDS HAVE CHANCE TO SQUARE SERIES

By The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, Aug. 14—The Cincinnati Reds have the opportunity today to square the series with the Brooklyn Dodgers in a double-header.

So far, the Bums have won two, and yesterday's contest was called "no go" by the weatherman.

Bucky Walters and Elmer Riddle will handle the pitching duties today opposed by Bill Lohrman and Curt Davis or Ed Head.

Possibility the Cincinnati line-up will be altered somewhat was seen last night when Manager Bill McKechnie said he was considering Max Marshall, left fielder, for a spot on the bench.

Marshall's hitting has not been up to expectations and McKechnie says he may put Bert Haas, the team's handy guy, in his place. Haas has been filling in at first for big Frank McCormick who has just recovered from an ailing back.

In center, McKechnie plans to alternate with Estel Crabtree and rookie Dain Clay. Gee Walker, the regular center gardner, is in Cincinnati taking treatment for a torn back muscle.

Draft board officials announced yesterday that pitcher Johnny Vander Meer and Haas have been ordered to report for induction near the end of August.

Rookie Outfielder for Boston Braves Hits in Clutches

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Elmer Nieman [illegible]

[illegible]

Last Saturday Nieman hit a [illegible] home run [illegible] and Thursday [illegible] in the 10th inning [illegible] the Cubs.

Although his batting average is .274, 18 of his 55 hits have been for extra bases.

The Braves-Cubs game yesterday was the only contest in the National league to escape inclement weather, but the American league ran a full program highlighted by the Cleveland Indians defeating Philadelphia and taking undisputed possession of second place.

Cleveland was unable to gain on the New York Yankees, however, because Spud Chandler pitched a 4-0 shutout over the St. Louis Browns.

Luke Appling, veteran shortstop of the Chicago White Sox, bagged the 2,000th hit of his career with a single that drove in a first inning run and Chicago went on to nip the Boston Red Sox 3-2.

Rudy York, who had hit seven home runs in the last six games, was stopped by Milo Candini's six-hit pitching as the Washington Senators walloped the Detroit Tigers, 11-3.

Ohio Grid Teams To Carry On Despite Handicaps of War

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Aug. 14— [illegible] war have extra [illegible] finding talent [illegible] equipment from [illegible] H. R. Townsend [illegible] 1943 football [illegible] despite the handicaps.

[illegible] the [illegible] side, Commissioner [illegible] 477 high schools [illegible] the Buckeye [illegible] Texas [illegible] competing [illegible] This year only 400 schools [illegible].

Between Sept. 1, 1942 and May 1, 1943 the Ohio schools lost 391 coaches. Prior to Sept. 1, more than 80 coaches departed. Of that total 347 are definitely known to be in the service, along with many others who have left coaching since May 1. There is a definite shortage of trained coaches.

The armed services have called a host of high school athletes, cutting deep into the playing personnel. Others, still eligible for play, have given up athletics to get into essential industry, while boys living on farms probably will drop out to help feed the nation.

Gas Rationing Hurts

Gasoline and travel restrictions, especially if the value of gasoline coupons is cut from four to three gallons, may upset schedules and attendance to some extent.

Shifting to the brighter side, Townsend declared:

"The various restrictions did not slash attendance last year, and I don't expect a drop this season. There is plenty of money available to buy tickets, and the fans want to see sports of all kinds. The gasoline problem may cut the attendance some, but the additional money angle will more than make up the difference.

"There is plenty of equipment on hand for the teams, and football shoes have been taken off the ration list. We have been shunted back to the old type footballs and basketballs, the newer molded balls being out for the duration. The change was made to allow use of reclaimed rubber, the molded balls demanding all new rubber.

"I'm in favor of carrying on to the limit, not only because of the recreational football gives the fans, but for the training it provides for boys about to enter the service. Football, of course, is the hardest hit of the scholastic sports. Basketball and all the others, I believe, will go on without a hitch. And plenty of spectators are assured."

Early Fall Season

For teams which did not hold spring football practice, the fall training session starts Aug. 20. For those which held spring workouts, the fall practice starts Sept. 1. The playing season extends from Sept. 17 to Nov. 27, both inclusive.

Townsend said he did not expect teams losing playing personnel to turn from 11-man to six-man football this year, since there was a heavy drop in the abbreviated sport a year ago.

"This season, and all the rest of the war seasons," [illegible] said, "[illegible] varsity careers [illegible] otherwise [illegible] been able to play. With starting athletes [illegible], the schools must [illegible] many talent to fill [illegible]. It's a great thing for [illegible] and it looks like a [illegible] for the fans.

"Football is a great medium for the boys [illegible] the armed services, and [illegible] one thing Ohio [illegible]. And we'll continue to [illegible]

"Du Barry Was a Lady" Opens Program for Week at Palace

Cast Headed by Red Skelton and Lucille Ball; Lyman's Orchestra Coming Wednesday.

"Du Barry Was a Lady," starring Red Skelton, Lucille Ball and Gene Kelly, which will be shown at the Palace theater starting today, ushers in an unusually fine program for the week, including the personal appearance of Abe Lyman and his orchestra on Wednesday.

The film "Du Barry Was a Lady" which starts Sunday and continues through Tuesday, is the story about the dream of Red Skelton who is cast as a check-room attendant in a night club. He is in love with glamorous Lucille Ball star of the floor show. He dreams he's King Louis and she's his Mme. Du Barry. His friends and associates of the club become characters in the adventure of the king and the charmer.

Porter Music Featured

The comedy is filled with Cole Porter musical scores with Tommy Dorsey and his band furnishing the music.

Abe Lyman and his orchestra will appear in person Wednesday. "Crime Doctor" starring Warner Baxter and Margaret Lindsay will be shown on the screen with the stage show.

This film is filled with suspense as the great Dr. Ordway, Warner Baxter, probes the inner lives of vicious criminals. A healer of twisted minds, he is completely baffled by his own.

The picture is adapted from the radio series with the author taking the stories from real life.

Double Feature

"Forever and a Day" with Brian Aherne and Charles Laughton heading a big cast and "Henry Aldrich Swings It" starring Jimmy Lydon, will be shown Thursday through Saturday. "Forever and a Day" shows the spirit of a people who will fight for their homeland until the last man is dead, in the story of an indestructible house and its seven generations of owners.

Henry Aldrich's headaches are set to music this time, classical music, which he insists upon swinging. Henry forms a swing band and looks for outside engagements. Complications develop when, after a school concert by a great violinist, Henry takes home the $10,000 Stradivarius owned by the violinist, instead of his own.

Charles Boyer Movie at Ohio

Co-Starred with Joan Fontaine in "The Constant Nymph."

"The Constant Nymph," starring Charles Boyer and Joan Fontaine is now showing at the Ohio theater and will continue through Thursday.

This brings to the screen the story of a musical family who are excited at the expected visit of a famous composer, Charles Boyer. One of the madcap daughters, Joan Fontaine, is in love with the famous man. After the sudden death of the father, an uncle, accompanied by his daughter, Alexis Smith, comes to the home to straighten out the family affairs. The visiting girl and Boyer marry and go to London to live, but Miss Fontaine realizes that he is unhappy and she helps him compose his masterpiece. The climax comes when the composer is playing the symphonic poem and during the piece he realizes where his heart really belongs. The setting for the film is in the Swiss Alps.

"Bomber's Moon" starring Annabella and George Montgomery, which starts Friday and continues through Monday, has as its theme the timely story of the occupants of an American bomber that is shot down over German-held territory after completing its mission. The pilot, George Montgomery, still in the plane, sees his younger brother, the bombardier, helplessly drift to earth, machine-gunned by a Nazi flier. The plane cracks up but Montgomery, only slightly injured, is captured and placed in a prison camp. He escapes from the camp with the help of a Russian doctor, played by Annabella, who accompanies him.

Joan Crawford In Featured Role of Picture at State

"Overland To Deadwood," starring Charles Starrett and Russell Hayden, and "They All Kissed the Bride," starring Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, will be shown at the State theater Sunday and Monday.

"Bandit Trail" with Tim Holt and "Tarzan Triumphs," starring Johnny Weismuller and Francis Gifford, will start Thursday and continue through Saturday.

Johnny Weismuller, as Tarzan, is involved in the war when he has to defend the natives from being taken as slaves by the Nazis who have invaded the jungle.

Marion Shows Gildersleeve

Harold Peary's "Bad Day" on Double Bill with "Redhead from Manhattan."

"Gildersleeve's Bad Day" starring Harold Peary and "Redhead from Manhattan" starring Lupe Velez will start at the Marion theater with a midnight show Saturday and continue through Monday.

The plot of the first story is the second of a series and is based on the experience of Gildy when he attempts to clear his name of suspicion of jury bribing and becomes embroiled with a gang of bank robbers.

"Redhead from Manhattan" brings Lupe Velez to the screen in a comedy of errors in which she is cast in a dual role. She portrays identical cousins, both of whom are musical comedy stars.

"The Glass Key" starring Brian Donlevy, Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake and "Seven Sweethearts" featuring Kathryn Grayson and Van Heflin will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

"The Glass Key" is a story of shady politics, a three-cornered romance and a murder. Donlevy, political boss, is engaged to Veronica who pretends to love him so he will back her father in the mayoralty race. She really loves Ladd, Donlevy's right-handed-man. When her brother is murdered and Donlevy is accused, things pop fast and furiously.

"Seven Sweethearts" tells of love and romance with a quaint Dutch village during the tulip festival as a background.

"Trail Riders" starring John King and "The Boy From Stalingrad" starring Bobby Smarzich will start Thursday and continue through Saturday.

The "Range Busters" are brought to the screen in another of a series of stories of a frontier town in the west.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 14 — Ohio's first deer hunting season in recent years will open Dec. 6 for 13 days, shotguns and bow and arrows may be used, the state division of conservation and natural resources announced.

Thirteen counties will be open. Hunters may shoot only bucks in three counties—Scioto, Adams and Pike. Both bucks and does will be fair game in Ashtabula, Columbiana, Cuyahoga, Geauga, Lake, Mahoning, Portage, Stark, Summit and Trumbul counties.

While specific regulations have not been completed, commissioner Don Waters said it was probable hunters would be allowed but one deer each during the season. Unofficially, he set the hunting day as 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., eastern war time.

Horror Chamber Is Press Room for War Reporters

By DON WHITEHEAD
AP War Correspondent

WITH THE AEF IN SICILY—Most of the front-line war dispatches for America from this area are written in a Sicilian chamber of horrors.

As yet no correspondent has walked out of the place jibbering more violently than usual, but it may happen any day now—unless we move our workshop from this deserted baronial mansion with the huge empty wine kegs in the cobwebbed back room.

Fortunately, everyone is too busy to look too long upon the four walls or the overhead nightmare that ordinarily would be called a ceiling. The human mind just isn't prepared for the violence of the murals in this room.

No one knows the whereabouts of its former inhabitants. No one knows whose tortured mind conceived and then transmitted from brush to wall the scenes about us—but it's a 50-50 bet the pictures on the walls, and not the war, finally drove the inhabitants to seek sanctuary elsewhere.

It couldn't be the scenery. From the little balcony on the second floor, you look out over wheat-yellow fields rolling below purple mountains, and when the air is clear in the early morning or the sun is sinking beyond the rocky hills Mount Etna can be seen towering majestically in the distance.

But this room!

The murals are framed in a fancy gingerbread trellis of dirty brown. Swans glide across the dark blue waters. Butterflies flit through a pale blue sky in which fluffy clouds float behind trailing flowers and blooming trees.

On one wall a brilliant peacock stands proudly on a limb. On another, a crane looks out stolidly into the fleecy blue, and birds flit about tree branches in obvious ecstacy. A parrot plainly is mouthing Sicilian obscenities.

But on the fourth wall the artistic soul halted or else rebelled, for across the baby blue sky the clouds and the butterflies and the birds is strung three electric light wires on which are sitting seven blackbirds with white breasts.

And I know they are electric wires, for the pole is mounted with insulators.

LOSE DRIVING RIGHTS

Driving rights of a 16-year-old Marion boy, arrested by city police Tuesday on investigation concerning an auto accident, were suspended by Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast Thursday. He and another 16-year-old boy arrested at the same time and place were turned over to their parents on probation. The first boy was at the wheel of a stalled car which the other boy was helping to push, city police reported. The car suddenly got out of control and ran up over the curb of the sidewalk at the intersection of Wood street and Uncapher avenue and struck George Sutton, 82, of 715 Wood street. He suffered minor injuries. The two boys were taken to county detention home by city police following the accident and remained there until their appearance in juvenile court.

WHEAT PRICES STAY IN NARROW RANGE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 — Wheat moved within a narrow range in most of today's session after staging a short-lived upturn in the first few minutes of trading on buying inspired by trade reports the OPA was considering a revision in flour ceilings. Activity was on the usual small Saturday scale.

Moderate demand for flour was reported from the southwest, with chain bakers taking around 25,000 barrels. The commodity credit corporation was said to have purchased around 2,500,000 bushels of wheat since inaugurating its buying program in July. Oats slumped on northwestern selling and rye backed down after advancing almost a cent at the start.

All grains slumped at the close, generally finishing at the lowest levels of the day. Wheat closed ⅜-½ lower, September $1.43-$1.42⅞, December $1.44⅞-¾, oats were down ⅝-1⅛, September 65⅝-¾, and rye was off 1⅜-1⅞, September 96-95⅞.

Tomorrow will be the last chance many Marion linksmen will have to beat the county tournament qualifying deadline, which is Wednesday. Country club swingers especially will be golfing extensively tomorrow to qualify for the annual club tourney and President's handicap tournament before the deadline at midnight tomorrow.

Country club golfers also have until tomorrow midnight to complete semi-final matches in the Vice President's handicap tourney. Many Mar-O-Del shooters are expected to commence firing for the second round of the club handicap tournament.

STEELS, RAILS EXTEND GAINS

Other Issues Drift Lower in Slow Saturday Trading; Sales Total 250,000.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 — Steels, rails and selected industrials managed to extend Friday's late recovery in today's brief stock market but many leaders continued to drift slightly lower.

Transfers of around 250,000 shares were among the smallest for Saturday this year.

Commitments were reinstated in a number of cases on the idea that the retreat from the 1943 highs of mid-July may have served to put the list in a healthier technical shape.

Better performers in today's market included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, and International Harvester. Among occasional losers were Western Union, U. S. Rubber, General Motors, Westinghouse and Allied Chemical.

Army Hour To Center On Occupied Area Control

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—Radio's version of the inside story of AMGOT—Army military government for occupied territory—is the feature of Sunday's Army Hour on NBC at 3:30.

Employing an elaborate hookup, the program will go to Algiers for a discussion of AMGOT operations in Sicily by Brig. Gen. Julius C. Holmes, to Charlottesville, Va., for a tour of the AMGOT school, and to Washington for a discussion of other phases of the operation, by Maj. Gen. John H. Hilldring.

Finally, it will switch to Fort Custer, Mich., for a dramatization of the capture of a German town and its subsequent operation by an AMGOT unit.

Majority Favors Expansion Of Social Security Act, Poll Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 14—Eight years ago tomorrow—Aug. 14, 1935—President Roosevelt signed a bill which was destined to become one of the most popular and best-liked single pieces of legislation in the history of the New Deal.

On this eighth anniversary of the social security act there are a number of basic amendments pending in congress which would greatly broaden the scope of the social security program. The public, which approved the original Act by the overwhelming vote of 89 per cent, is in favor of many of the proposed amendments, and a substantial number of Americans are willing to pay 6 per cent on their wages and salaries in order to make the enlarged program possible. Under the existing law employes pay only 1 per cent this year, and 2 per cent next year.

Increase Before Congress

The increase to 6 per cent in payroll deductions, as proposed in the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill now before congress, would go largely toward increasing present pension benefits and toward establishing a new feature of social security—payment of benefits for sickness, disability, doctor and hospital bills.

There have been heated arguments in the medical profession over the advisability of setting up "socialized medicine" programs such as this.

While a division of sentiment also exists on the part of the public, nevertheless the majority of voters favor the proposed change.

An institute survey from coast to coast put the issue before the people as follows:

"At present the social security program provides benefits for old age, death and unemployment. Would you favor changing the program to include payment of benefit for sickness, disability, doctor and hospital bills?"

The vote is:

Yes	59%
No	29
Undecided	12

All those who favor the program were then confronted with the fact that this would mean an increase in the amount of money deducted from their wages or salaries. They were asked whether they would be willing to accept this larger deduction:

"Would you be willing to pay (or have your husband pay) 6% of your salary or wages in order to make this program possible?"

The vote of the 59 per cent approving the program divides as follows:

Yes	44%
No	11
Undecided	4
	59%

To Include New Groups

Another of the many proposals contained in the bill now before congress is that social security be broadened to include farmers, domestic servants, government employes, professional persons and others who are not now included under the program.

By a large vote the public favors expanding social security to include these groups:

"At present farmers, domestic servants, government employes, and professional persons are not included under social security. Do you think social security program should be changed to include these groups?"

Yes	64%
No	19
Undecided	17

BARRAGE

that in the number of gun barrels per kilometer it was many times stronger than on any sector in this war or any other war, even at Verdun.

"Our artillery with aviation covered six to eight kilometers (about three to five miles) of the German line in depth during the intense period of the battle. This was on a considerable stretch at all points where we needed a breakthrough."

20-mile Breakthrough

The breakthrough was made on a front from 20 to 25 miles wide.

The general said that Orel was taken by a series of coordinated converging attacks from north, east and south.

Lower Nazi morale was indicated by the fact that a larger number of Germans surrendered than in previous battles, he said, but the majority of the enemy fought to the last cartridge. He said the prisoners appeared to have been greatly impressed by the downfall of Mussolini.

Sabennikov was the first Russian general to enter Orel, driving into the city the morning of Aug. 5 and making his headquarters in the cellar of a ruined home. He was welcomed by women and children, weeping and cheering and heaping flowers on his car.

Sabennikov, who was appointed commander of the Orel garrison, said "we expect a stubborn battle on the Karachev-Desna line near Bryansk and on the Dnieper. Very stubborn battles are going on now but Soviet troops already are approaching Karachev."

The Germans again are using as many as 1,000 planes daily over the Karachev sector and headquarters indicated that the Red air force was giving them a hard tussle.

American General Grant and British Churchill tanks are being employed, although not in large numbers, mixed with Soviet tanks which the Russians consider less vulnerable and more maneuverable.

More Than Rearguard Action

Sabennikov insisted that the Germans are not conducting a rearguard action but are attempting to form a strong defense with fresh troops.

He said the Red army was suffering considerable losses but less than the Germans due to the superiority of Russian artillery.

Orel's former population of 114,000 has dwindled to 30,000. Every brick and stone building has been ruined, either in battle or by German demolition, although many wooden houses are intact. The city still is without water and electricity.

In Mtsensk, a town of 15,000 population before the war, which became a battlefield north of Orel, not a single person is left. Only one log cabin was untouched when the Russians entered.

The fields are scarred by bomb and shell craters, torn by tank treads and strewn with mines, which have become one of the Germans' main weapons in defense. Eighty thousand mines were found in and around Orel.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

DICKY PROPELLED me into the hall with one hand while with the other he lifted his small whistle to his lips. The three guards whom he had summoned before in this way appeared at the doors of their rooms and he spoke quickly.

"Listen for the telephone in your rooms. If the operator says 'Okay,' you, Smith, walk downstairs one flight and stand near the elevator. You, Jenkins, go upstairs one flight and do the same thing. You, Watkins, stay where you are, ready to rush out if the maid yells 'Help!' Jenkins, after five minutes you get in the elevator, and ride up and down till the woman gets in, or I tell you to stop. Smithers, after five minutes you keep ringing the elevator. When it stops, get in if the woman's in the car. Otherwise, stay on the floor until she comes along. And when you get downstairs, keep her in sight until you can point the office to the men who are to trail her. Then come up and report to me. Got it?"

All Know Their Roles

"Yes," they chorused softly.

"Then get back and close your doors—all except Watkins, who stays on guard here."

His luck was good or his timing was perfect—I did not know which—for the doors had scarcely closed before the elevator stopped at the seventeenth floor, and Ruth Hayes, with elation written all over her, strode toward 1120, throwing me only a cursory glance as she passed.

Smug satisfaction in what she evidently considered the success of her assignment was etched on her face, and gloating triumph looked out of her eyes.

She let the door of her room close with a careless bang, while I, with sudden unreasoning panic, turned into the nearest room, leaving the door ajar the merest crack. I did not see where I could have made an error in replacing her bag with the false bottom, but I knew that I should have no peace of mind until her departure from the hotel, with no apparent suspicion that anyone had been in her room.

Ruth Comes Out

But I was not to get off so easily. In less than a minute, her door opened again and she stepped into the hall. But, though I expected an angry call of "Maud!" she did not utter a sound. Instead, she stood motionless for several seconds, shooting keen glances around the hall. Then, suddenly—and noiselessly—she moved to a spot directly in front of Dicky's door, which was still ajar, and gave it a violent thrust.

I felt as if everything inside me had suddenly vanished, leaving only awful emptiness. I knew that if she should catch sight of Dicky, she would know at once that a trap had been laid for her, and in all probability would avoid the one which my father was planning to spring in Hal Meredith's office in the afternoon.

But Dicky evidently had been standing just behind the door, and had guessed her purpose just in time. At any rate, the door slammed in her face before she could enter the room, if that had been her intention, and at the sound, I popped out of the room in which I was hiding, as I naturally would have done at any unusual sound in the hall.

She did not see or hear me, until she took her hand from the doorknob, and turned around. Then I saw her eyes narrow, but I had my patter ready.

"Oh, Madam! That isn't permitted. I'm afraid I'll have to—"

She gave a scornful little laugh.

"You'll have to what—report me?" she said. Can't I show a little sympathy for a poor sick man without your getting all steamed up about it?"

A Sudden Change

Then her tone changed with terrifying suddenness.

"You're the one who's making the mistake," she snarled. "I'm going to report you — not you, me! Come here!"

I did not obey her, but instead stepped backward.

"No, no, Madam," I babbled, and my simulated panic was more real than I would have admitted even to myself. "You look—so—so—funny. Madam! I'm—I'm afraid!"

"You'd better be afraid—not for your hide, but for your job!" she snapped. "There's something funny going on around here. What were you doing while I was gone, snooping around my bag? Trying to find something you coud lift?"

The Doctor's View

I CONFESS to a weakness for the books about conditions within beleaguered countries at war. The newspaper correspondents' accounts are far better than the ambassadorial or official versions—the correspondents get around more, have a more comprehensive view of what the common people think.

THE LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN seems to me the best account of the German situation, and RUSSIA FIGHTS, by James E. Brown (published by Scribners, New York), far and away the most vivid picture I have encountered of what the Russians are doing.

The Russians, according to Mr. Brown, are thinking this — they are for Russia and nobody else. They have done four-fifths of the work in stopping the Nazis and when they get what they want they are probably going to quit. Unless Japan attacks them, they are not going to declare war on [illegible]

Their post-war policy is isolationism and plenty of it.

They are going to rebuild Russia their own way. They had felt that before the war they were surrounded by a hostile ring of capitalistic states, and the fact that they got very little help when they were in trouble has made them sore.

I must say this attitude makes sense. It stiffens your backbone. It is a good antidote to the treacle about internationalism of Mr. Lippmann and Mr. Willkie.

The account of Mr. Churchill's visit to Moscow is rich. He appeared at an official Soviet banquet in overalls, which didn't make near the hit that he makes at the White House.

Mr. Willkie's visit made a much better impression. The accounts of these two visits, the pen picture of Stalingrad, the factory workers, the amazing development of Russian women, nurses and ambulance drivers at the front, the Bakunin trials, the probable successor to Stalin, are all well worth reading in detail.

Here are some thoughts:

An official said, "Our neigsbors start the wars, we don't. There would be no wars if the other nations of the world adopted our social system."

I was interested in the accounts Mr. Brown gives of the work of the hospitals. However we may feel about it here socialized medicine works in Russia. The nursing is efficient, the hospitals clean, the medical attendance intelligent, and the patients are individualized in treatment as they should be.

"There are fewer deaths from serious wounds than in other wars: we take care of casualties better: we give emergency treatment on the battlefield," a military surgeon told the author. "Then the sulfa drugs have saved many lives. We get a good deal of sulfa from America, but we need more of it."

All that sounds very alert and up-to-date.

Flier With Gable Has Narrow Escape from German Flak

By The Associated Press

A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, Aug. 14—After he and Capt. Clark Gable had just been missed by a chunk of flak on a Fortress raid over Germany, Master Sgt. Fletcher Cupp, former sports editor of the Carthage, Mo., Evening Press and correspondent of the Kansas City Star sent this message back home to his old boss [illegible]:

"As soon as this war is over, I'll sure be glad to meet that deadline of yours again."

Cupp, radio operator and gunner on the Fortress "Ain't It Gruesome," yesterday was on his 15th raid over Germany when the flak burst tore through the ship three feet from where he was standing. It was a close call for the former movie star, standing near. It was one of 15 such bursts that the ship survived, but Cupp didn't know how near he was to the bad news until after landing back in England.

"I had just left my regular position in the radio room to go back into the waist and fix a fuse," Cupp said. "I heard something like a tin can dropping and just thought maybe one of the boys had dropped an ammunition case or something. When we got down I saw the hole made by that tin can."

"Ain't It Gruesome" was "all over the Ruhr," he added, "and ours were the huskiest evasion tactics I've ever seen. I believe it was the roughest raid I've been in yet, although they are all rough enough. You see we were in the lead ship, and of course they go for that ship."

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, Aug. 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of great activity, both public and private, with affairs of church and clergy properous. But there may be some sort of opposition or disagreement with superiors and as well a tendency to extravagance, waste and indulgence. All should endeavor to stabilize for endurance and permanency. Exercise good judgment and foresight, with prudence expenditures as well.

Those whose birthday it is may have the opportunity for putting their affairs on a firm and enduring basis, with future security and economic freedom the main objective. Diligence, concentrated effort, sound tactics and foresight should effect this end. However, there may be want of cooperation from superiors or employers, and an inclination for indulgence, extravagance and unwarranted outlay of expenditures may prove detrimental. Slow but sure is the slogan.

A child born on this day may have excellent qualities of character and sound abilities and aspirations although excessive generosity may lead it to extremes in indulgence and expenditure.

• • •

For Monday, Aug. 16

MONDAY'S astrological forecast may not be interpreted as favorable. A definite danger from an uprooting and separative influence, precipitated by unfortunate quarrels, tempers, passions and emotional impulses or erratic moves, may prove devastating on circumstances, the fortunes, the health and peace of mind. All call for restraints, reason and moderation.

Those whose birthday it is may draw down upon themselves a sudden disruptive and injurious state of affairs undermining their prospects for success, happiness and peace of mind. This by a tempestuous attitude, overenergetic use of the forces and faculties, as well as indulging in passionate and erratic impulses and emotions. It is an uprooting and separative force, precipitated by what might be turned into highly constructive channels, by restraint, self-control and calm decisions. Such devastation may have regrettable reactions on the physical and nervous well-being.

A child born on this day may be over zealous, impulsive, erratic, to its undoing. But with restraint it might accomplish much.
